Description	Discover the region of the Cinque Terre which is one of the most beautiful regions of Italy. Between Levanto and La Spezia, there are five medieval villages Tumble towards the sea, back to the steep slopes, or huddled at the level of hills carved terraces in stages. Their names: Monterosso al Mare, Vernazza, Corniglia, Manarola and Riomaggiore. This region is part of Unesco's heritage as a cultural landscape. The Region of Liguria (in Italian Regione Liguria), More commonly known as Liguria, is a region of Italy located in the northwest of the peninsula. Its name comes from the ancient people of the Ligurians, even though they occupied a much larger territory than that of present-day Liguria. The regional capital is Genoa. Liguria forms an arc around the Ligurian Sea. It is surrounded by the Alps and the Apennines. It is a region very open on the sea and largely mountainous.
